Delegates Urge Road System Reform In County

FOURTEENFOOT HIGHWAY AND A GASOLINE TAX IS FARM RECOMMENDATION

Technicalities Are Banned By The Legislators

ABOUT 150 ARE PRESENT

Preparations Are Being Made By Representatives

Twelve to fourteen foot highways, gasoline tax, uniform enforcement of the road working laws and the abolition of legal technicalities now standing in the path of the Board of Revenue in providing Morgan county with a system of highways, was the voice of a meeting held Saturday at Hartselle city hall, at which approximately 150 farmers and business men were present.

Meeting at Hartselle city hall at two o'clock at the request of Representative John Patterson and F. E. (Gen.) Burleson, citizens delegates from nearly all of the 24 Morgan county towns debated their way through more than two hours of profitable discussion, making known the wants of the county and suggesting that such wants be made law in the enactment of road laws planned by legislators Patterson and Burleson at an early meeting of the legislature.

With Representative Patterson presiding the meeting was opened with a short talk by Mr. Patterson in which he stressed the purpose of the gathering, explaining that delegates were called for the purpose that representatives might know the consequence of opinion prevailing in the county with regard to certain road reforms.

Mr. Patterson, at the request of the assembly, read the existing road laws, in order that the delegates might be acquainted with the present law and their relationship with the desired changes.

Concluding the reading of the various laws Mr. Patterson spoke of the purpose for assembling, saying "we will take your ideas and thoughts and do our best to boil those thoughts into something worthwhile in the preparation of a road law suitable for the majority. Gentlemen, you have been asked to come here to solve the following questions now existing in the minds of Mr. Burleson and myself: Do you want a wheel tax? Do you want a gasoline tax? Do you want $5 and 10 days $10 and 10 days, $5 and 8 days, as a rural road tax? Consider the road overseers, do you want a full paid man to have supervision over the entire county road system, or do you want a man to have supervision in each beat in the county? We want any other suggestions, for you know more about this than we do, else we would not have asked you to assemble here." With these explanations Mr. Patterson called upon Representative Burleson to read the outline of the road laws now in mind.

Representative Burleson in a few introductory remarks explained that the board of revenue had asked that such laws be prepared, that the board members have stated that they cannot enforce existing laws and that abolition of legal technicalities is essential.

Mr. Burleson asked that discussion follow each provision as he read.

The outline provided that an age limit of 21 to 50 be provided with 5 days work on the payment of $5, payable before the first of April of each year. There was not a great deal of discussion upon the proposed age limit change, the law now providing that male person between the ages of 18 to 45 be required to work the roads or pay the tax.

A vehicle license tax, applicable to all but vehicles used exclusively for farming purposes, ranging from $2 to $24 for 2 to 8 horse wagons, over a period of 12 months, brought considerable discussion, with the recommendation that it is probably best that the scale of graduation in weights be

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 22.—(AP)—With a rapidly mounting death toll that had reached 22 today, the South recorded one of the most disastrous week-ends in months.

The toll was believed climbing as numbers of injured were reported dying. Automobile accidents, drownings, domestic troubles, suicides, a blast and several brawls were contributing factors.

Orlando, Fla., was the scene of a wholesale jail delivery after an officer had been slugged into submission.

Birmingham escaped with one fatality in the death of E. W. Cotton, 45, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., who died in an ambulance, after his machine had crashed into an embankment and skidded into a telephone pole at Fairfield Sunday afternoon.

B. R. Miller, a companion, escaped with minor injuries. The fatality list, with causes, stands as follows:

COURTHOUSE DECISION IS IN HANDS OF BOARD OF REVENUE

Members of Board Do Not Expect To Reach A Decision Before Tuesday; Monday Is All Day Session.

Members of the county board of revenue, Attorney A. J. Harris and a representative of a well known bonding firm met today at the temporary courthouse quarters in the Aycock building on Ferry street to discuss the future plans with regard to the replacing of the Morgan county courthouse which was destroyed by fire November 12. A decision was not expected until Tuesday, if by that time.

Board members worked upon their problem through the morning and afternoon sessions today with only an outside chance to reach a decision late this afternoon.

Board members had little to say regarding the plans taken under discussion.

A courthouse official stated today that he believed that at least 75 per cent of the people interested in the negotiation are hoping strongly for a courthouse equal in facilities to the demands now prevalent.

Opinions have varied, some suggesting that the courthouse should be built three stories in height to add a courtroom on the third floor and that it should be built on the same foundation of the old building which is understood to be in good condition following the blaze which destroyed almost the entire first and second floors.

Others have desired an entirely new building, hoping that officials could see fit to buy the entire block in which the courthouse is situated and that the present jail might be removed and placed on top of the new building, thus eliminating many chances for the escape of prisoners.

No official information could be gained today, the negotiation not having progressed far enough for the issuing of an official statement to the public, but it is understood that the majority of the members of the board are in favor of the plan to rebuild on the present foundation and build three stories in height.

A. M. Dunaway, vice-chairman of the commission, is acting as chairman in these negotiations, Judge L. P. Troup, chairman, continuing ill at his home.

MRS GIBSON TAKES 'TURN FOR WORSE'

Defense Continues Its Effort To Prove Stevens' Alibi

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson has had a relapse. Her condition was reported "anything but favorable" in Jersey City hospital today.

Mrs. Gibson testified three hours from a cot in the Hall-Mills courtroom in Somerville Thursday and it was believed the strain was exacting its toll.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 22.—(AP)—An array of witnesses from LaValette, N. J., home of Henry Stevens, came today to support his statement that he was at his home the evening of September 14, 1922, when Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills was slain with the Rev. Edward Hall, brother-in-law of Stevens.

Testimony today put him there as late as 10:30 o'clock, Mrs. Sarah Wilson, a neighbor in 1922, testifying that Stevens came to her home about 10:30 o'clock on the night of September 14.

The state contends Mrs. Mills and Mr. Hall were killed about 10:20 o'clock. Stevens, his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and brother, Willie Stevens, are charged with the murder of Mrs. Mills. Other neighbors testified that Stevens was on the LaValette beach about ten o'clock.

Howard Price said he saw him in front of his home at 9:55 and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Applegate said he was on the beach when they left for their home, which they reached at 10:35.

BRIDGE WORK TO BE RESUMED NOW

Tennessee River Is Reported Receding Monday

Work on the highway bridge across the Tennessee river at this point, curtailed several days ago as result of a rise of the river, will be resumed full-force within a day or two, it was indicated today at the offices of the Koss Construction company on Alabama street.

The river today was reported falling and officials of the company were hopeful that the small crew of men at work this morning, could be augmented before the week ends.

The Koss company estimates, with favorable weather, that its part of the construction of the bridge will be finished by March of next year.

COMMERCIAL-APPEAL EDITOR DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS DESK

Fainting Spell Suffered Soon After C. P. J. Mooney Reached Desk and He Never Rallied.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(AP)—C. P. J. Mooney, 61, editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, died suddenly in his office here today of apoplexy. Mr. Mooney came to his office against the protest of his wife, who said he was suffering from influenza.

Soon after he went to his desk, he suffered a fainting spell and was dead when physicians reached him.

Preparations for the publication of an afternoon paper by the Commercial Publishing company had heaped additional burdens on the nationally-known editor and publisher, who recently announced that his company would issue the Evening Appeal, beginning December 1.

Mr. Mooney's death occurred at 7:40 o'clock, approximately five minutes after his collapse at his desk. Dr. Louis Leroy, physician, who had been summoned, arrived shortly before his last breath but the editor was unconscious and died without speaking.

Surviving children are Mrs. Robert Galloway, Hugh Mooney and C. P. J. Mooney, Jr., all of Memphis.

Mr. Mooney was born in Bardonia Junction, Kentucky, September 15, 1865. He is survived by his widow, who was Corrine G'Sell O'Conner, of Pine Bluff, Ark., and three children.

He took over the office of president of the Commercial Publishing company about three years ago, retaining the duties of the managing editor of the paper. It was soon apparent to his friends the double duties of his position were sapping his physical strength.

Mr. Mooney's general health in recent months, however, had appeared to be excellent.

MOTOR INCREASES SEEN FOR MORGAN COUNTY OVER 1926

Class "A" Licenses Lead List With 2913 Issued

CITATIONS ARE ALREADY SENT

Summer Points The Penalty To Accrue For Non-Payment

An increase is seen in the number of motor driven vehicles in use in Morgan county this year.

With 2,913 A class licenses and approximately 500 licenses for other classes already issued, it is considered a safe guess on the part of officials that the number of licenses will exceed figures of last year.

Approximately 1,000 citations have been sent out by H. R. Summer, license inspector, who called attention to the fact that a 15 per cent penalty with the addition of service fees is now in force and must be paid by the owner who has disregarded the delinquent date. Licenses for this year became delinquent on last Saturday.

Mr. Summer likewise pointed out that those people who have not paid for license and the additional penalty by December 1 are subject to summons before the Morgan county court and that that court has within its jurisdiction the power to place such fines as are deemed necessary under the varying circumstances.

Morgan county last year had something more than 4,000 licenses issued, according to figures revealed sometime ago.

The increase this year will not show any great difference in the numbers of motor driven vehicles in this county, but the fact that there is an increase is taken as a meaning that there is a prevailing tendency favoring the use of motor driven machinery on the farm as well as the addition of motors in business and social life.

Two Speeders And One Drunk, Charge

Drop In Prices For Near Months Is Very Slight

MUCH COTTON UNPICKED YET

Big Buying Orders Help Resistance To Price Fall

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)

For the first time in history the American cotton crop will exceed 18,000,000 bales, the department of agriculture reported today. Indications on November 14 point to a total production of 18,399,000 bales.

The indicated crop is 2,295,000 bales larger than last year's yield. Of this year's crop 12,953,708 bales had been ginned to November 14.

There are large quantities of unpicked cotton in Texas, largest producing state, and Oklahoma and the government's crop reporting board said the amount which of this will be picked will depend largely upon weather, labor conditions and price during the next two months.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)

The cotton crop will total 18,399,000 bales this year as indicated by reports concerning condition, probable yield, ginning and other factors as of November 14, the department of agriculture announced today.

A fortnight ago 17,918,000 bales were indicated. Last year's crop was 16,163,679 bales.

An approximate yield of 186.3 pounds per acre is indicated compared with 181.4 pounds a fortnight ago and 107.2 pounds last year's final yield.

The indicated total production by states follows:

Virginia 52,000, North Carolina, 1,260,000, South Carolina 1,140,000, Georgia 1,490,000, Florida 30,000, Missouri 252,000, Tennessee 480,000, Alabama 1,440,000, Mississippi 1,880,000, Louisiana 790,000, Texas 5,800,000, Oklahoma 1,880,000, Arkansas 1,575,000, New Mexico 72,000, Arizona 112,000, California 126,000, all other states 22,000, Lower California (old Mexico) 80,000.

The department's next report on December 8, showing revised harvest acreage, percentage of acreage abandoned and yield per acre and total production will be the last report until revision next April after the final ginning report.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Cotton of this year's growth, ginned prior to November 14, totaled 12,953,708 bales, including 426,926 round bales counted as half bales and exclusive of linters, the census bureau announced today.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22.—The government cotton crop forecast, announced today, had only a slight effect on the market here. Total ginnings of 12,953,708 bales was smaller than expected, while the crop forecast of 18,399,000 bales was larger than expected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Remarkable resistance was displayed on the New York cotton exchange to the increase of 418,000 bales in the government crop estimate of 18,399,000 bales. Prices dropped approximately $1 a bale, but large buying orders were encountered on the decline.

Local Hotel Is Given Praise

High praise for the Lyons hotel here was given today by H. J. Thrasher, state inspector for the Alabama department of health, who was a visitor in the Twin Cities.

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of
November 22, 1914.

November 22, 1914, falling on Sunday, there was no issue of the Daily on that date.

The undertaking business must be flourishing in certain Illinois sections.

Nineteen applied for jobs as firemen in positions evacuated by two at the Albany department, they must have heard of the rise in coal prices.

Yes, the radio is progressing, but your neighbor doesn't feel a bit better after you've stayed up half the night letting him listen to station S-Q-W-A-R-K play "static" in jazz time.

With woolen and fur coats selling from $75 upward for mi-lady, and cotton selling at eleven cents a pound, it does seem there could be some reconciliation of these quotations to the mutual satisfaction of all Southerners, at least.

One of the "wise cracks" in this week's Literary Digest is wiser than usual. It suggests that one thing wrong with America is the fact there are too many mortgaged cars are traveling over bouded roads.

City streets were dangerous places a few years ago, as automobile traffic increased. Now most of the streets are fairly well patrolled, with traffic regulated, and stories of death and destruction on the rural highways continue to arrive.

Red Grange and his all-star proponents and opponents played to only 30,000 people at the Yankee stadium. That many people saw Georgia and Georgia Tech play in Atlanta. Amateur football still has a strong hold on the public's imagination.

The annual convention of the Travelers' Protective Association, to be held here next year, provides an opportunity for Albany-Decatur to impress these evangelists of trade with the magnificent possibilities here and the growth of the Twin Cities. Our citizens cannot afford to permit such an opportunity to pass without full advantage having been taken of it.

Two newspapers in the afternoon field in Memphis consolidated. This was followed by announcement that the morning paper had taken over the afternoon franchise in the Associated Press and would publish an evening paper as well as morning. May The Daily be permitted to offer its condolences now to the consolidated paper?

Down in Georgia the people evidence a determination to stamp out lynching. Several convictions, with resultant penitentiary sentences recently were meted to a group of men who took the law into their own hands. That is the quickest way to stop a practice which has nothing whatever to commend itself. Law enforcement by other than the duly constituted authorities ceases to be law enforcement, but law violation.

When the years have passed and the Twin Cities are a great deal larger than they are now, there is a little group of Albany-Decatur business men who can look back with satisfaction on the record they have made as city builders. Did the thought ever impress you, that whenever there is a call for civic work, whether it be negotiating with an industry or conducting a charity bazaar, the names of about a dozen local business men are always in the group of workers?

IT'S AGAIN TIME TO THINK THE THANKSGIVING THOUGHT.

Sitting behind a desk, guiding a vacuum cleaner over a floor, building a new home, turning on the power to run a machine, driving an engine, building a bridge, tilling the soil, hauling to market—there isn't much time to think of the good things of life is there? When night comes there is a longing for rest, a comfortable fire, a book, a newspaper, a couch. But now it's the Thanksgiving season, the season recognized when we shall pause and thank the Heavenly Father for our condition.

He has been good to us, all of us. There is hardly one of us who cannot look around and see some other condition we would not care to face, some adversity suffered by another greater than the greatest adversity we have faced. It is time that we paused, this once a year, and gave thanks to the Father above who has watched over us, guided us, protected us, prospered those about us as well as ourselves, reasoned with us through some power unknown to us, prospered us in business, helped us to find happiness in the world and at home, given us Faith to go on to greater things, ambitions we have not realized. It is time we thought of the Divine aid we have been receiving. The Father has been good.

Thanksgiving inspires more than the thoughts of a good dinner, more than football classic, more than a holiday. Thanksgiving is our day set apart for giving thanks unto the Lord. Is one day enough that we should worship at the throne of that benevolent Power?

The days have come and gone in another year and our condition is bettered for we have followed the advice of the Father, we have tried to make good at his direction. No bunk to that, the Father has directed that we do well honorably, peacefully, willingly and when we have followed those dictates we have prospered. There is no denying that Divine law. He has been with us through another year and we are pleased to halt and offer our thanks for the things he has blessed us with, the kindnesses mounting up in our thoughts, the countless happenings which have brought happiness to us, our Lord has done those things for us. Let us give thanks unto the Lord for He is good, let us follow in His footsteps all the days of our lives, for He is good. Let us give thought of these things during this Thanksgiving season.

MORGAN COUNTY FARMERS SAY "GIVE US ROADS."

About 150 farmers and business men of Morgan county responded to the call of Representatives John Patterson and F. E. Burlison Saturday afternoon and met at the Hartselle city hall to discuss the Morgan county road future. Had you been there, had you entered into the discussion with the same zeal of spirit as the farmers present, had you shown an interest to the extent that you braved a cold November afternoon, your heart would have been warmed by the prevailing spirit among those fellows clad in the clothes of the farm, but with hearts and heads set upon progress for Morgan county.

If the writer was asked the question "What do you consider will come out of that meeting at Hartselle?" he undoubtedly would answer, "Roads, roads of a permanent type, roads of at least 14 feet in width, a road tax to provide for a part payment upon those roads, a competent engineer who knows how to build roads." If he were asked, "Why do you draw such a conclusion?" he would answer you briefly, "Because I felt that spirit and that kind of spirit does not fail in purpose."

Those Morgan county farmers are not pleased with present conditions, there was an occasional defense of the narrow road, but when mention was made of a recommendation for 14 to 16 foot roadways there was considerable enthusiasm from the sons of the soil. Those men came there at the request of Morgan county's representatives, they discussed the road future at the request of Morgan's representatives and they will do their share as they have intimated they will do when the proper laws are passed, providing that every one shall pay a tax for the building and maintenance of Morgan county roads, or work a certain number of days.

An opinion of that meeting would bring about the following conclusion: Morgan county has made a great forward step, even greater, perhaps than the bringing of a good sized industrial plant, for this reason: Morgan county has begun to know its own power, Morgan county feels its need for expansion, from the business man to the industrial man to the farmer of this county that need is felt, we have waited and groped long enough, the time is come when we must realize upon some of the advantages we already have in our midst, namely the advantages of a wealthy agricultural section which has been cut off from the centers of commerce in past years because there has been a lack of means to get products to market, there has been a lack of means to get products to market, there has been so little travel that the people in the rural section have not realized that the people in population centers were strongly in favor of agricultural aid of any proportions, so long as it was for the general good of Morgan county.

Will the farmer back new legislation forcing him to work upon the highways of the county? Had you been present at that meeting it would not be necessary to answer such a question. Of course the farmer will back such enactment of law, would a man fail to take advantage of one of his greatest resources, is this new road era not to bring an avenue of trade for the farmer, is he not going to be able to reach suitable markets with his goods, can he not reach the consumer with products grown upon the rich soil of Morgan county? The farmer is back of this move for better roads in this county, he wants better roads for the reason that marching with a tide of progress he has learned that means must be provided to travel in vehicles of transportation equal to keeping up with the pace. The ox cart will go out with the advent of new fourteen to sixteen foot highways, additional automobiles to pay additional gasoline taxes, to build better roads and maintain what we have.

Yes, the meeting Saturday was a revelation. The so-called backward farmer came to the fore with sensible suggestions, he went ahead of his city brother for his city brother was not represented in the majority. He offered suggestions which will be taken by our representatives and improved upon and worked into a sensible bill which will move old Morgan county another step toward North Alabama supremacy.

People of Albany-Decatur, we should be proud of these sons of the soil, these men who toil the year round to place Morgan county ahead of other sections in agricultural production, the greatest wealth known to mankind, these men who come frankly and cleanly and say that they are willing to supply their good right arms, or their money if it means that the Morgan county road system is to be improved. They are fighting a fight that will of course bring glory and convenience to themselves, but they are aiding their city brother vastly while they are fighting.

May old Morgan county rise to her heights, may old Morgan take the bill as passed by the legislature and have an improved road system extending from one end of the county to the other, may this Utopia of wealth throughout this land become a reality through the progressiveness of farmers, business men, legislators and the Morgan county board of revenue. A road victory is within our grasp and we cannot fail to see it. The days of the nine foot road are at an end, the days of the muddy roads, the pathway, are counted. Instead there will rise a Morgan county proclaimed over the state of Alabama as a great county, a progressive county inhabited by a progressive and contented people, a people who early realized the advantage of getting products to market and set about to get full value in such advantages. Many road meetings have been held in this county, many organizations have advocated road building, but there are no instances in which there is greater significance than that instance Saturday afternoon when our native sons came together to vote penalties upon themselves that they might render greater service to themselves and to their brothers in the centers of population. May our representatives continue their wise course, may they place a bill before the legislature providing many of the things recommended by the farmers, that Morgan county might prosper the more.

AN ANNUAL PRESIDENTIAL NIGHTMARE

Plain Facts About Investments

FINANCIAL REPORTS

By W. S. COUSINS, International News Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK.—President E. H. Simmons and the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange have won an important victory for American investors and security holders in creating a sentiment favorable to the publication of more frequent financial reports by the representative business corporations of the country. Many logical and constructive reasons can be given why the big business corporations cannot divulge to the public at large the details of their daily operations, their gross and net incomes for specific periods and their plans for future expansion. It would be detrimental to their interests, as well as to the interests of their stockholders to do so. It would divulge important information to competitors and handicap the companies in their work.

The trouble is that too many corporations lean over backward when it comes to rendering reports of any kind, and are unwilling to give even their own stockholders the benefit of information that would be of benefit, and without injury or handicap to the corporations themselves. "We are a long way from the old style 'public be damned' corporation era, but there is still sufficient old-fogism in American business to advocate a relapse to the old ways, provided they could be secretly smuggled in. There is enough old-fogism to abolish the telephone, the type-writer, the copying carbon and other 'new fangled' devices introduced by the smart generation which knows more than its elders. And you do not need to go far from Wall street to find it.

In the early part of this year Mr. Simmons, backed by his listing committee, inaugurated a modest friendly campaign designed to create a sentiment favorable to the rendering of fuller and more frequent financial reports to stockholders. The suggestions have met with quite general approval. Meanwhile, the listing committee of the stock exchange, has an important club to hold over the heads of corporations seeking the advantages of the exchange in the distribution of their stock. They can deny them the benefits of stock-exchange listing unless their managers comply with all requirements, including the demand for quarterly or more frequent financial reports.

It should be said here that the efforts of the stock exchange for corporation publicity ante-dates the spectacular outburst of Professor Ripley of Harvard University on this subject, which was reputed to have made Wall Street sit up and rub its eyes, and even to have helped the bearish professionals to pound down the market values of a few of the leading speculative stocks. After formulating the policy very early in the year, the committee was ready in May to send formal letters to the corporation heads placing the matter squarely before them and requesting a definite reply.

About one-quarter of the companies whose stocks are listed on the big board are now publishing quarterly reports, while thirty per cent issue annual reports and a slightly smaller number have no definite agreement as to the periodic reports and statements. Railroad companies have the best arrangement from the stockholders' standpoint, since their managers hardly without exception freely publish and circulate copies of the monthly statements of operations and earnings to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

SLEEP THE HANDMAID OF GOOD HUMOR

Indiscretions of Diet, Too Much Smoking and Drinking Often Bring on Train of Ills—Worry to be Avoided.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

If you ever took care of a furnace or had occasion to look after a stove, you know what happens when it gets clogged up with clinkers and ashes. The fire just won't burn unless the stove is cleaned out. There must be fresh fuel and fresh air if the fire is to burn.

If an inanimate thing like a stove or furnace is affected by being clogged up what do you think will happen to the delicate nervous system and functions of the body, if there is clogging to the human system?

When the nervous system is clogged by reason of eating too much food, or the wrong kind of food, conditions are created which interfere with sleep. In consequence the victim is irritable, nervous and bad tempered.

The habitual use of an excessive amount of tobacco may result in sleepless nights. Whatever it is that disturbs the rest should be discovered in order that it may be removed and the system restored by proper sleep.

You don't need to worry about your brain and nervous system if you are sleepless. There is nothing the matter with those organs. You need not begin to worry and think that you are to end in an asylum or a hospital. A little common sense exercised with reference to eating and drinking will end your trouble. More exercise, more water—to drink, honest perspiration, and recreation of the right sort will do much to promote your recovery from sleeplessness, and restore you to good nature and usefulness. You can't be happy or good-natured if you can't sleep. For the sake of your friends, if you are the victim, make an effort to shake off the symptoms and to get back to a normal condition.

DR. COPELAND

If others are as sensitive as I am they always suffer when there is lack of good nature on the part of associates. One long face in a great big room will take the joy of life from all the rest of the persons who work in those surroundings. I would have great sympathy for the person who suffers in this way if I were not so fully convinced that it is founded on some physical state which can be got rid of by a little care. Right eating, right drinking, right exercise, right sleeping, right playing—in these we have the secret of getting rid of conditions which produce sleeplessness and undermine good nature.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926, by The Star Co., For Albany-Decatur Daily).

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

IT was mentioned here Thursday that the Italian flier Bernardi would go after the three kilometer record, held by an American officer. Bernardi did go after it, and got it. His average was above 258 miles an hour, covering the course four times.

THIS is a good thing for the United States. In some way the government of this country must be made to realize that flying is a reality and that the airplane, invented in America, really flies. Bernardi, flying under the administration's nose at Norfolk, may help to make known the fact that flying is real.

GEORGE STERLING, brilliant poet, killed himself with poison, having written "Deeper into the darkness can I peer than most, yet find the darkness still beyond."

He has looked perhaps a little deeper than usual now, and we ought to wonder what he saw. But we don't wonder, or care much. Nature keeps us so busy with little things that we forget we are going to die until the time comes, and then, usually, we are too weak to care.

WHILE George Sterling was dying of poison, in San Francisco, Mrs. Ella Cross, aged 31, was lying in the rear seat of her automobile, with the garage door locked, and the engine pouring carbon monoxide into her lungs. She died of course. Did the two meet in no-man's-land, and ask each other questions? Do we remember anything or anybody, when this foolishly short run of life is over? What does happen, after friends and relatives go home, and the undertaker sends his bill?

IF YOU want to know about prosperity, and the future, ask Herbert Hoover. He continually travels about the country, and actually sees what he looks at. As secretary of commerce, he has full business information, and he tells Universal Service that 1927 should at least equal, if not surpass 1925 and 1926. If the country will attend to business, instead of guessing about future conditions, there will be nothing to worry about.

THE Westinghouse company has built an electric locomotive to pull two hundred freight cars, a load of ten thousand tons, not counting the cars. At a tenth of the expense, with no costly upkeep of roadbed, rails and equipment, a canal tug will haul ten thousand tons of ten barges.

EUROPE builds canals, and utilizes the cheap transportation. Secretary Hoover is trying to persuade this country to do the same, starting with canals from the Great Lakes to the ocean and the gulf.

Mr. Hoover is in deadly earnest, but the question is, will the railroads allow it? Probably not.

MRS. FRANCES DELARUE weighed 200 pounds a year ago, and decided that the weight must come off. It did. Now she weighs 98 pounds, and the doctors say she is too weak to stand an operation required by her emaciated condition. She may die.

THOUSANDS of young girls are starving themselves almost as dangerously without any 200 pounds weight as an excuse. For this and other foolishness among young people, the fathers and mothers are responsible, not the foolish children in this foolish age.

PEOPLE no longer ask "what's the use of science." Standard oil ships are adopting radio beacons, low powered automatic radio transmitters. They tell when another ship, similarly equipped is near in a fog, and with the radio compass, the captain can establish the direction of the warning signal. Radio "light house" will one day replace the old kind, defying weather. Men will soon be as wise as bats that find their way in the dark, in a room filled with wires strung close together, never touching a wire.

FIRE LOSSES SMALLER

A gratifying decrease, both in the number of fires and in losses sustained, in Alabama for the year ending September 30, is shown in the annual report of Chester E. Johnson, state fire marshal. Fires were fewer by 627 than they were the preceding year, and the monetary loss from all fires in the state was less by $1,433,857. Fires laid to incendiaries were 109, and persons who perished in flames numbered 47.

"We did not have much success in getting firebugs in the penitentiary this year," says Mr. Johnson, who adds that many cases were put off from time to time and many many of them are still pending in the courts.

Reducing fires to a minimum is engaging public thought more and more. Aside from efforts of the state fire marshal's office in the matter of education along this line, observance of "Fire Prevention Week" and the co-operation of other agencies are proving productive of encouraging results.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

THE PRIMARY HAS MANY ENEMIES

Vice President Dawes has shifted his batteries from the senate rules to the primary. He is an ardent advocate of some radical changes in our election methods. His conviction is shared by millions of his countrymen, because they have observed the abortive results of the primary.

The primary, particularly the peculiar wrinkle in vogue in Alabama, has substituted minority control for majority control. It is about forty times as bad as the system which obtains in most of the other states.

General Dawes calls attention to the fact that in cities the ballots is often so long that no voter knows much about the character, ability or opinions of many of the candidates. In such circumstances it is easy for the politicians to control the result. An organized minority finds it easy to win. Some of the full-grown fruits of the primary are seen in the candidate who writes his own platform, the office-seeker who sees himself as bigger than his own party and in the utter lack of party responsibility which flourishes in blocs and minority legislative groups.—Selma Times-Journal.

FUNDAMENTAL TRUTHS ARE STATED IN ADDRESS BY MR. DONALD COMER

Basing his remarks on the fundamental truth that no man liveth to himself alone, Mr. Donald Comer, general manager of the Avondale Cotton Mills of Birmingham delivered, an address before the Anniston Rotary club, last Tuesday that was remarkable for its sincerity and its truthfulness.

Mr. Comer might have dissected the cotton situation, the future of Alabama industrially and politically; he might have delved into facts with regard to our financial and economic outlook in general, and his remarks would have commanded the attention of his audience. But instead of that he took as his text the ethical teachings of Jesus and drove them home to his hearers as a great challenge to a larger altruism in every day citizenship.

It is one of the hopeful signs of the day that many of our big men are carrying their religion into their daily lives, and it often happens that the lay preacher exercises a more potent influence than the man who speaks from the pulpit. Mr. Comer is a man of that type. His ideals are finding expression in the amelioration of the conditions that surround the workers in all of the Comer mills and he is not content merely to improve the physical conditions of his employees, but on every Sunday he teaches a Sunday school class at the Avondale mill in Birmingham and is thereby speaking to lift the spiritual outlook of those who work with him to make one of Alabama's greatest industries.

The religion of Jesus Christ, properly understood and faithfully interpreted in works, is the one great hope for the solution of all our national and international ills. There is no more profitable study than His philosophy of life, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Comer's address here will contribute to that end. We need more men like him who have the courage of their convictions.—Anniston Star.

With the completion of the paving of driveways on the campus at Woman's College, Montgomery, roller skating has become a popular sport among the young women students attending the school.

Six Montgomery taxi drivers were placed under arrest at the same time Saturday afternoon. All were charged with reckless driving.

VANISHING PARTY HOSTS-TO-BE URGED TO COMPLETE LINKS.

The vanishing party idea as set forth by the Community Board in the Twin Cities for the purpose of raising funds for local community work met with enthusiastic response and each person, almost without exception, attended the parties and in turn have entertained. However several of the links are still incomplete and those who are to entertain are urged to do it as soon as possible so that the money may be all turned into the community board treasury. It has been said that the community board and the community houses under the supervision of Miss Fella Richardson, are doing a splendid and commendable work but are in need of these funds.

There is no one who would willingly fail to end their part and as there are still numbers of persons who have not been invited to attend any of the parties so far, every hostess-to-be will please get busy and have the parties "vanish."

PARCEL POST SOCIAL

Mrs. J. B. Schimmel entertained the members of circle two of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Central Methodist church with a social on Saturday afternoon at her attractive home on Sherman street, which she had beautifully decorated with red berries, autumn leaves and chrysanthemums.

Assisting her in receiving and entertaining were Mrs. Carl Patterson and Mrs. E. T. Rushing.

A program consisting of several readings and musical numbers was very much enjoyed by those present, including the members and a number of friends. Miss Woods, expression teacher of the Albany schools, read a selection from Madame Butterfly that was especially pleasing. Other delightful readings were given by Miss Penn, and little Misses Mary Elizabeth George, Miriam Hunter and Edith Mae Schimmel. A quartet number "Hark, Hark My Soul" by Martin and rendered with much expression by Mesdames R. M. McGlathery, George Jackson, W. A. Perkins and J. G. Hamilton, accompanied by Mrs. W. P. Baugh, who also played for Mrs. McGlathery, when she beautifully sang "Four Leaf Clover." The feature of the afternoon was a parcel post sale which netted a nice sum, the customers receiving many useful and pretty gifts. Refreshments, sandwiches, tea and mints, were served late in the afternoon.

A Modern Atlas

By Fanny Darrell.

WHEN poor Atlas was condemned to carry the heavens on his shoulders, he little dreamed that his descendants would have to carry the same load—only in a different form. Look into your heart! Are you the cause of some loved one carrying a load that is almost more than he can bear? Are your demands such that they add to rather than detract from this load? Do you demand furs, jewels, gowns, money to satisfy your selfishness rather than think of how you might lighten the load? If you do, then you are like the enemies of Atlas who, when they captured him, condemned him to carry the heavens.

Remember, true Love should be unselfish, helpful and giving, rather than selfish, demanding and nagging. Which is your love? Take heed before it's too late and the love breaks under the load!

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: May I address a few opinions to "Wants Know?"

Friendship is spiritual. Love is both physical and spiritual. "Petting" is a questionable state between the two. It isn't logical. It is a modern misunderstanding between boys and girls that will soon blow over.

The ultimate aim of everyone is marriage—or a career. Can the holy state of matrimony be holy if "petting" makes it cheap?

If you believe that the popularity which follows petting is worth while, if you think those boys and girls who pet are fit friends for you—then pet.

But remember that most of your living is before you. Those years ahead are the richest. You mustn't do anything to hurt your future happiness.

Your mind is your guide—not the minds of others. Do always what you think is right. People like Annie Laurie will always be glad to help you.

Don't pet just because others do. Don't crave dates just to show others you can get them.

To my way of thinking, petting is unnecessary. You really cannot chase after love. It will single you out.

Find some little hobby to interest you. Study dancing or read the best romances and biographies in the library. The latter are real life as it has been lived. Or learn tennis or the piano. Do something you like to do. It will lead you to friends with the same interest—and love will follow.

MISS TWENTY-ONE has some very sound views. What do my readers think?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I read with interest a recent inquiry in your columns from a young lady, who wished your advice as to whether or not she should permit young men to kiss her on leave-taking. You advised her not to allow this familiarity because it was unconventional. I wish to express the viewpoint of a young man upon this question:

It is my belief, and probably that of the average young man, that to kiss a girl upon taking her home from some entertainment is conventional. It is a custom in all classes of society at the present time. Furthermore, a noted writer and student of history has shown that kissing always has been a custom. Any custom which all classes of society are and always have been following is an accepted custom, sanctioned by popular belief and, therefore, conventional. For any school of etiquette to arbitrarily set up "good-night-kissing" as unconventional in the face of popular approval and practice is absurd and ineffective.

As for your contention that no young man respects a girl who allows him to kiss her good-night. I wish to point out again that it is not based upon the facts. I am a young man and my character is considered above reproach. From personal experience and that of my friends, I know that a girl who allows a young man to kiss her good-night is respected as highly as the one who does not allow it. She breaks no true convention and is likely to be less hypocritical than the girl who says, "How dare you!"

Moreover, I would not kiss a girl who is not respectable. And any boy who disrespects a girl for allowing him to kiss her, by no twist of logic, can have any respect for himself.

It is my opinion that a "good-night kiss" does not tend to "break down the moral fibre of boys and girls of good character, and those without good character will not be held in check by this so-called "convention." FREDERICK G.

HERE is another point of view. It is my opinion that Frederick has been somewhat guilty of sophistry. I am quite aware that kissing has been customary since the beginning of time. But that has nothing to do with the indiscriminate liberty of the "good-night kiss." What do you think?

Hartselle News

By J. A. WEST
Rev. H. H. Ellis and family arrived Wednesday evening, and found the Methodist parsonage a hospitable place, as the members of the women's missionary society had prepared a warm supper, and everything was in excellent condition for the new Methodist minister.

Rev. Ellis arrived in time to hold the regular mid-week prayer service, at which a fair sized audience greeted him, although the night was very disagreeable.

The new minister filled his two appointments Sunday, having large audiences each service. Everything points to a most prosperous church year, the beginning being under most favorable circumstances.

Sheriff C. E. Poole and Deputy Ben Poole were in Hartselle Thursday afternoon on business.

Reports are to the effect that the city school is so congested that it is practically impossible to take on any more new students. The matter of a public school building located on the west side of town is being suggested as the remedy, and it is quite certain that this matter will take definite shape before another term of the school.

er tank is being placed in position and riveted, and only a few more days will be necessary before water connection will be made.

Lee Johnson and family of east Morgan have moved to town, and have taken the residence owned by C. C. Doss on Main street. Mr. Johnson is in the employ of the L. G. Gulley cedar company, and comes here to send his two boys to school.

The hardest freeze of the season came Thursday night following close the heavy rains. Ice was plentiful, and the frost resembled snow, so complete was it. Many took advantage of this cold spell to kill their hogs, and many fine porkers were packed.

Fine specimen of turnips, grown locally are being sold on this market and compare favorably with those raised in other sections and shipped in. Those who are experimenting in this culture, assert that they can be profitably grown here under favorable weather conditions, planting as early as possible that the roots may have ample time to mature.

Mrs. J. F. Cain left Saturday for Melbourne, Florida, to spend the winter there with her sons Candler and Lloyd.

A. M. Waugh and R. C. Miller were in Hartselle on business Thursday.

The alfalfa interest is beginning to grow in this section as its variety of good uses is becoming known to farmers. J. E. Dutton, prosperous land owner in the southwest part of the county is preparing now to sow quite a large parcel of land to this important crop.

Several planters in this section have tried it and found it a most profitable crop, and when once placed on a good footing, will solve the cheap raising of pork, as hogs allowed to graze on it, require no other feed, and do unusually well and get fat.

The large corn yield in this county is a source of much gratification to every one, especially the farmers, who annually have had to go in the markets and buy high priced feed stuffs with which to make their crop on. It is asserted positively by those familiar with the situation, that here is plenty of corn, hay and other feed stuffs gathered by the farmers of this county to amply supply their needs the coming year, and despite the large crop, it is stated that there is very little of these important items being offered for sale, at this time.

There was preaching services at the Methodist, Baptist and Christian churches Sunday morning and evening by their respective pastors. At the Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. H. H. Ellis brought a deeply spiritual and eloquent message to his congregation at the morning hour, it being a companion sermon to the sermon he will preach at Thanksgiving Day, at which time there will be a union service held at the First Baptist church, over which the pastor will preside. Special music bearing on the day will be provided, and all have a hearty welcome to attend on that day. Merchants have been asked to close their place of business while the service is being held.

Many Hartselle sportsmen availed themselves of the first open day on quails last Saturday, and with dog and gun took to the fields in search of this game bird. Quail are said to be numerous in this section.

Several nice specimen of wild ducks have been bagged by sportsmen in the waters near here.

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. pictorialization of this novel.

CHAPTER I
The Forbes were at it again! The Randolph Todhunter Forbes, you know, of Park Avenue and Newport and Southampton and the Berkshires and the North Shore. Oh, THE Forbes, the R. T. Forbes. Ranny and Joan (nee Smid, of course), whose dazzling elopement of two years before had been the sensation of the high social world, and whose crashing scraps ever since were no less the sensation of the idle rich.

Yes, the Forbes were at it again. Nor the haunting mellow loveliness of the early autumn, day, nor the satiny green beauty of the Old Westbury polo field here beside the Jericho Turnpike, could sweeten the vials of ill-married wrath. Or soften those dirty looks, those drier words, those dirtiest smiles. Verily, the Forbes were at it again!

"The trouble with marriage," said Joan Forbes in the jolly remote tones that married women use in addressing their husbands and their caddies, "is that after the wedding most men become husbands."

"Ha! Ha!" rasped Ranny, swinging off the Turnpike with an unsignaled suddenness that almost scared the spavined horse of an Italian farmer into bolting, and so startled the drivers of at least six other cars that they simultaneously ruined their brakes and their chances of getting to heaven by the impious fervor with which they consigned Ranny to Hades. "The trouble with marriage," he jeered, "is that after the ceremony ALL women shoulders through a door window, grinning with shrewd amusement at the flushed and angry countenances.

"Greetings, little love birds," chorried, Clay was a bachelor, and for a moment more and I'd have rather play without you, Ranny, much as I'd hate to deprive the Turnpike of their dearest back, and the spectators of the sight of their favorite hard-riding and sensational America player."

Clay was to referee the afternoon's game—the final in the Westbury Cup Match, in which Ranny Torndeen were pitted against the invading Argentine.

"So please cut short billing and cooling, you two—and Ranny come along and select your first mount. You will spare your boy friend for a while, won't you, Joan?" he grinned wickedly.

Even though he was an old friend Joan glared at Clay with the devious hostility every married woman harbors toward bachelors. "Take him and lose him—and go along yourself!" she cracked.

"What," asked Clay as he walked away hurriedly with Ranny, inwardly breathing his bachelor's prayer of thanksgiving for single blessedness, "little pebbles on the matrimonial sea has rippled since Joan's placid surface today?"

"Quite being poetic, chump," gloomed Ranny. "It has become serious. Joan wants a divorce. 'Congratulations!' enthusiastically.

"Congratulations be blowed!"

become wives. And if there's anything under the sun harder on a guy's good nature than a wife, may I be struck into a plink-eyed baboon—

"You merely lack the pink ears."

"Any wife is enough to drive any man to drink!"

"Ha! Ha! Now it's my turn to tell you a story!" he roared, "Nor a sorry one!" he mourned, "savagely plunging their Lincoln into a parking space of Ford dimensions, and jamming his brakes on in time to stop only a scant foot from a chifony group of affrighted Junior Leaguers."

Joan FELT the knowing glances from the helmeted, booted, and bright-shirted players who were selecting their first chucker ponies, from the grooves who were gingerly walking the blanket-washed ponies. Yes, even from the wise little ponies themselves.

"Clown," she hissed, her cheeks aflame. "Go right ahead making a public show of your nasty temper. Then EVERYONE—with a comic shrug of her pretty shoulders—"can judge for themselves why I should get a divorce."

"Hypocrite! Don't you get it?" "Why I don't," Joan stormed. "It's because you're not man enough to provide me with grounds for divorce. If you were half the man you pretend to be, you'd go to Atlantic City with a chorus girl, or let me find you in your pajamas in some art model's studio. But no, you'd rather remain pure but cranky. And talk me to death by inches."

"If you ever come to my death through talking, I'll be suicide."

Joan's subdue. "I warned the climatic height of the storm."

"Why don't you give me a divorce?" she gritted.

"So's you can marry that—"

Joan paled suddenly; "Who?" she whispered.

"That—that worm! I know more than I've been letting on!" Ranny's emotions were getting a bit out of hand.

"What worm?" raged Joan with a bold front, under which she was quakingly wondering if and how he could possibly know.

The boom of a deep voice—a new voice—rumbled in the tensely charged atmosphere of the luxurious limousine. It was Clay Varick, Ranny's chum, looming his fat

FAIRY STORY—Once a young married man invited friends to a turkey dinner and said he would carve the bird himself, which he did very neatly.

"Marriage makes a great difference to a man," sadly confessed a young wife to her girl friend. "When I sit on my Sheikh's knee now, his foot goes to sleep quicker than it used to!"

HE WOKE UP

He strutted home one evening And sought his faithful wife To say: "My dear, we're fixed now I've just insured my life. I've taken out one thousand So if I pass away, There'll be sufficient money My funeral bills to pay."

"I see," said she, deep sighing, And vainly tried to smile. The undertaker's safe now, And that's one thing worth while. But how about our Willie And our dear baby May? How could I feed and clothe them If death took you away? "I'd have to earn the living, But could not earn the living, Which I could surely do. And keep the children too."

That set the chap to thinking— He nearly knocked him prone! He hastened to the hallway And shouted in the phone: "Hey! that you Mr. Agent? I'm Billy Jackass Jones; Just change that application To read twelve thousand bones— Two thousand when I kick off, And sixty three each moon." The agent said, "Alright, sir," Then fell down in a swoon.

FEW CHANGES IN CONFERENCE RANK

Crimsons Remain on Top of the Heap In South

Few changes were wrought in the standing of Southern football teams over the week-end, the majority of conference eleven being on the idle list awaiting Thanksgiving games.

Outstanding conference games included the Washington and Lee-Maryland game which the Generals won 2-0 through the good play of Captain Ty Rauber. South Carolina defeated North Carolina State 20-14 in what came near being an upset. The Centre Colonels handed the Kentucky Wildcats a 7-0 defeat in a non-conference tilt. Virginia smothered Randolph-Macon 57-0. Florida was held to a scoreless tie by the Hampden-Sidney team.

The standing in circles as compiled by the Associated Press follows:

TWO PRACTICES TO PUT TIDE IN TRIM

Nineteenth Meeting Georgia-Alabama To Be Colorful

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Nov. 22.—Two short practice sessions remain for Alabama's Crimson Tide before they will leave the Capstone for their final game of the year, annual Thanksgiving day clash with the Georgia Bulldogs.

It will be the nineteenth meeting between the two teams and should be the most colorful affair. A record-breaking crowd of 18,500 is expected to view the contest. All reserve seats were sold early this past week and sales of the general admission tickets have continued unabated.

Prominent sports writers, including Lawrence Perry and Davis J. Walsh of large news services, Ed Danforth and Morgan Blake, of the Atlanta papers, and Jack Lawrence and Pat Dozier are expected to see what is expected to be the greatest battle in Dixie on that day.

It will be Alabama's eighth conference foe of the year and there is a hope among Tide supporters that this eighth foe will take its place among the seven already defeated. Alabama has won from Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech, Mississippi A. & M., Sewanee, Kentucky, Louisiana State and Florida already this season and stands alone in the undefeated class of the conference. Only two teams have scored upon the Crimson.

Alumnae Tickets Have Been Bought

Jess Long, Alabama alumni official, has announced that the tickets to the Alabama-Georgia tilt at Birmingham in the alumni reservation are all gone and have been gone for several days. Mr. Long's announcement thus gives an inkling to the size of the crowd journeying down to see the Crimson and Bulldog in action. Many are planning to attend the game from these cities, while others will take the annual journey to Nashville to witness the Vandy-Tiger trouble.

Opinions Give Tide Victory

Various opinions are given freely regarding the coming Alabama-Georgia game at Birmingham on Thanksgiving, but there have not been any Georgia predictions of victory yet. Most opinions give the Tide from a two touchdown to a four touchdown margin of victory. Bama enthusiasts expect Georgia to count.

Predictions Are Upset In Few Cases During Football Week-End

Predictions did not suffer greatly over the week-end as the result of football activity over this United States, most teams pointed to come out on top did that very thing, much to the satisfaction of the predictors.

McRee Is Still Working On Game

Pryor McRee is still at work upon the rumored Independent-Falkville tilt which will likely be played at Hartselle. "Mac" has a long job ahead in assembling his team mates who have scattered since last year. Falkville, it is understood, desires to play on the Friday following Thanksgiving.

Falkville has a good eleven, well coached under the care of Aubrey Garrison and would give an Independent squad much trouble.

Deshler Respects Blond Dynamite

Decatur Hi lost the last game of the season to Deshler Tigers at Tusculum 20-7, but that didn't keep the Tiger from respecting the play of Paul Wade, talked as that "bit of blonde dynamite." Wade, according to sport writers in the Tri Cities section, was all over the field, dropping Tiger backs for losses.

ALBANY HI WILL PLAY MORGAN CO.

Purple and Gold To Journey Down To Hartselle

One more game remains on the Albany Hi schedule before the curtain comes down next Thursday. Albany Hi goes down to Hartselle for the final game of the season, meeting Morgan county hi in what is expected to be the stiffest sort of competition.

Coach Alford went to work this afternoon to get his charges in shape to halt the Morgan lads who are heralded as having a fight, fighting aggregation with plenty of punch. The Morgan county team has not had an impressive year, but the lads from down Hartselle way have stopped heavy opposition time and again, preventing the rolling up of big scores.

Albany Hi emerged from the second win of the season last Friday when the locals moved easily through mud and water to halt the Ryan Cross Roads team. Whether Albany can do as much for Morgan county high will be determined by the amount of fight left in them when they reach the Hartselle gridiron.

The time of the game has not been announced here.

Is Your Printing Working FOR
against you?

Your business reputation is made up entirely of impressions—what others think of you—and largely of FIRST impressions. First impressions lodge deeply; they're hard to change.

Many first impressions are formed by the printed material you use—your letterheads, envelopes, statements, direct mail advertising, etc. Good impressions if the printing is well done. Otherwise bad impressions.

Don't spend money to injure your own business. Insist on printing that builds good will. It is better to foot the bill for good-will-building printing than to foot the bill for stagnant business.

We print for the business man who demands that his printing be loyal to his business.
